6. RESEARCH HIGHWAY ENGINEER, Turner - Fairbank Highway Research Center, Pavement Division, U.S. Department of Transportation, Federal Highway Administration, McLean, Virginia, (9/29/85 - 8/8/86). Job assignments and activities were as follows:

Documenting and updating research work progress, maintaining financial records and inventory, and preparing written requests for supporting information to complete research assignments. Preparing timely reports to assess research progress for meeting deadlines while complying with the established standards of the United States Department of Transportation procedures and formats. Dealing with weigh-in-motion projects for Highway Planning & Research (HP&R) and supervising the development of a low-cost project conducted under a direct contract with the Federal Highway Administration. Working with the project manager and supervisory personnel to develop contracts and staff for the National Cooperative Highway Research Program (NCHRP) and monitoring state Highway Planning and Research studies using the knowledge of theory and background information to make decisions during development. Identifying implementable outputs of Research and Development (R & D) programs responding to management requests for technical information related to past and present research assignments. Doing in-house research using Thumper (a research device capable of creating, measuring, and recording pavement deflections under dynamic and static loading without causing damage to the pavement). Preparing research proposals to conduct in-house research and requests for proposals for out-of-house contracts; administering, supervising, and monitoring research contracts; preparing procurement requests, technical reports, and report reviews. Improving the organization's output through reviewing reports, which were modified by soliciting technical comments from operating office counterparts, offering constructive criticism as appropriate, and working with others to maximize cooperation to yield a harmonious and productive work atmosphere. Meeting with numerous outside groups on matters of transportation interests.

7. HIGHWAY ENGINEER, Federal Highway Administration, Eastern District Federal Division, 1000 N. Glebe Road, Arlington, Virginia (3/25/85 - 9/28/85). Responsible for the design of highways and bridges, including retaining walls, cribbing, guardrails, riprap, work zone safety design, and appurtenances. I emphasized environmental considerations when designing and preparing construction drawings and specifications. In resolving unusual hydraulic problems, I exercised ingenuity in design creation, meeting safety, aesthetic, and engineering requirements, and recommending designs of complex interchanges as necessary. My activities extended to determining appropriate cost factors. The Critical Path Method (CPM) defines the work schedule required to complete projects under unusual construction problems during the construction process.
8. CONSTRUCTION MANAGER, New England Railroad Construction Company, Inc., Bridgeport, Connecticut (10/1/84 - 3/15/85). Duties in this capacity included bid preparation, budget preparation, payroll, staff meetings, supervision of construction and staff, and face-to-face meetings with private and public officials. During the first month of my employment (Oct. 84), I prepared several bids which won over 1 million dollars' worth of projects for bridgework. The job required technical judgment and the use of the computerized Critical Path Method (CPM). I used Cost-benefit techniques to accomplish tasks most feasibly and economically.
9. VISITING PROFESSOR, Department of Computer and Electrical Engineering, George Mason University, Fairfax, Virginia. Responsible for teaching structural FORTRAN 77 (a computer course) for engineers and scientists (8/84 - 10/84).
10. CONSTRUCTION ENGINEER, Bechtel Construction Incorporated, Limerick, Pennsylvania (5/1/82 - 8/17/84 part-time). Job assignments and activities included stress analysis, support design work, and analysis of complex structural problems on a computer, as well as supervision and monitoring of installed structural members, including providing such technical assistance to engineers.
11. ASSISTANT PROFESSOR, Civil Engineering Department, Villanova University, Villanova, Pennsylvania (9/1/77 - 6/30/84). Taught at the College of Engineering including:
 - Engineering Mechanics "Statics and Dynamics";
 - Plane Surveying, Transportation Engineering, and Laboratory;
 - Transportation Engineering and Planning on the Graduate Level.

Also, I supervised the theses of graduate and undergraduate students, organized field trips, developed new courses, invited lecturers, participated in the research, and prepared proposals.

12. CONSULTANT ENGINEER, Halifax County Administration, Halifax, Virginia (1977-81, part-time). Assisted the County Administrator in selecting and designing industrial parks and prepared long-range plans for corridor development.
13. COUNTY ENGINEER, Giles County Administration, Pearisburg, Virginia (1972-76, full-time). Assisted airport development, parks, and recreation projects; developed utility and solid waste management programs; developed and implemented an effective industrial support program - planned three industrial parks (25, 67, and 141 acres); designed, wrote specifications, and supervised the construction of three industrial complexes (20,000, 30,000, and 37,500 sq. ft.) and assisted in the locating of three industries over a four-year period which generated 600 new jobs in the county. I addressed numerous groups and one national organization on the general role of local government in economic and industrial development.
14. CONSULTANT CIVIL ENGINEER, New River Valley Planning District Commission, Radford, Virginia (1970-71). Helped relate engineering, environmental, and demographic data to existing and proposed transportation mechanisms within a 4-county, 1-city geographical area, presented options for consideration to the governing bodies concerned, and offered alternative solutions using a computerized mathematical model called "TOPAZ."
15. STRUCTURAL ENGINEER, Office of Planning and Engineering, Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University, Blacksburg, Virginia (1968-72, full-time during summers and part-time during academic years, average 20 hours/week). Designed building components and updated plans; surveyed and graded site plans; and utilized computers for institutional space requirements.
16. GENERAL DIRECTOR, Building Construction Department, Ministry of Public Works (BCD- MPW), Kabul, Afghanistan (6/65 - 7/66). Responsible for the administration and design of public buildings. Directly supervised twenty foreign engineers and architects. Administered and coordinated the activities of my entire staff and participated in high-level meetings. I was becoming familiar with policies and developing the country's building codes and safety regulations.
17. STRUCTURAL ENGINEER, BCD-MPW, Kabul, Afghanistan (1/65 - 6/65). Responsible for implementing construction plans, preparing necessary building specifications, and participating in selecting contractors. Additionally, I directly inspected the contractor's work to ensure the work progress met the contract requirements.

CREATIVE WORKS

VIDEO CASSETTE

"Automated Sketch Planning Process (ASPP) for Improving Intersections," a videocassette prepared for the Florida Department of Transportation (which is available for student use) by the candidate, S. Naik, and C. Jacks, Dec 1990.

Videocassettes have been prepared for the Florida Engineering Education Delivery System (FEEDS) since 1992 and taught two graduate-level courses to graduate students on EDGE via Canvas.

SOFTWARE

ASPP (Automated Sketch Planning Process) Software: Prepared this software for the Florida Department of Transportation (FDOT) as a computerized process for urban signalized intersection improvement. It was submitted to the FDOT in December 1990 for use in their planning process for improving intersections in Florida. The candidate worked closely with C. Jacks of the UF Transportation Research Center in developing this software in 1989-90. This project was published in the Transportation Research Record 1280 by the Transportation Research Board National Research Council, 1990.

OSRCSF (Oil Spill Response Capabilities in South Florida) Software: Prepared this software under the Star Grant supported by the Institute of Government for the South Florida Regional Planning Council. The candidate and his graduate students, Baran, Fu, Prasad, Salimi-Tari, and Ducher, developed this software. The South Florida Oil Spill Response Information System aims to enhance existing response capabilities and assist officials in handling oil spills by providing the necessary data. The database contains information on oil-sensitive areas, addresses, phone numbers of contact personnel, and a list of oil spill cleanup contractors and equipment. DBASE3 PLUS is a popular database management language that can run on an IBM PC/AT or compatible system in a DOS environment. The computerized system is a very efficient oil spill management tool that has received much publicity through the Associated Press and was published in Transportation Research Record 1333 by the Transportation Research Board National Research Council 1992.

WIM (Weigh-In-Motion) Software: This software was developed for FDOT by the candidate and his students to analyze weigh-in-motion truck data, such as average weight and damage factors of trucks, the total number of trucks and standard deviation, for analyzing truck traffic as related to truck damage factors, November 1996. It is for use by roadway and bridge designers, engineers, and planners. This project was reviewed by the Transportation Research Board (TRB) National Research Council and presented by the candidate at their 76th Annual TRB Meeting in Washington, DC, in January 1997.

Utility Pole Accident Frequency Predictive Model Software: This software was developed for FDOT by the candidate and his graduate student. The model identified the essential factors contributing to pole accidents and collected actual FDOT data. The model applied the SAS program to determine model coefficients. The developed software generates predicted utility pole accident frequency and provides decision-makers with probability-based accident prediction, May 1998.
